Fourth Edition

Adolf Hitler was born of a nominal Catholic family. Yet, he found it necessary to forcefully crush many activist Catholic organizations, as well as Protestant churches, during the time of his rebuilding of the German economy. It is certainly no secret that he jailed Jehovah's Witnesses, Masons, and Gypsies. Yet, all that he did, he did in the name of the Most High God, and claimed divine authority for the actions of the Third Reich. These facts create a standing historical paradox in that they raise a pertinent question: What did Hitler really believe?

The Western media repeatedly paints the German leader as a raving mad-man bent on world conquest. American movie-makers and book publishers have created a Hollywood stereotype image of Adolf Hitler that has painted him with the Jewish brush, at least in the minds of Americans, as the very incarnation of Satan himself. German storm-troopers and especially the SS are always portrayed as the villains. The name of Hitler is now equated with the very epitome of evil. Yet, hundreds of thousands of German soldiers lie in Christian graves, all having fought for their God and their country.

How, then, can we objectively reconcile these historical facts with the prevailing distorted view of history? If Hitler claimed to be a Christian, on what did he base his Christianity? What did he believe and from whom did he learn his belief system? Before we can proceed in this all important inquiry, it is obvious that we are going to have to define exactly what it means to be a Christian. For unless we can arrive at a satisfactory definition of what it means to be a Christian and what constitutes a Christian, then it is obvious that we can never gain a clear answer to the questions we have raised.

Where, then, can we find an authoritative answer to this basic question? If we wanted to be a Buddhist would we not go to the teachings of Buddha? If a Talmudic Jew, would we not go to the Talmud? What then does Christ and His Holy Apostles tell us constitutes a Christian? The New Testament declares repeatedly that to be a primitive Christian one must believe and practice the teachings of the Christ. The New Testament makes it clear that there is no Christian belief apart from faithful practice. Therefore, a real Christian, according to New Testament definition, is one who believes the teachings of Christ as delivered by Himself and His Apostles. The proof for belief, according to Christian standards, is one who practices what he professes to believe. This makes sense when we see the strange variety of so-called Christians, many of whom hypocritically teach and practice the exact opposite of what Christ and His Apostles actually taught as doctrine.

So there we have it - an objective standard declared by the New Covenant of Christ as to what it means to be a Christian, a real Christian, and it is the undeniable standard of trust and obey. Now we are ready to weigh Hitler in the balance of the justice of God's Word and stand in judgment of angels (messengers), and see how this historical figure compares to the Christian standard of true belief. Now that we have established an objective rational standard by which to determine whether Hitler was a Bible-believing Christian or not, let us return for a moment to the first question we raised regarding Hitler's Christian education.

The historical facts show clearly that Hitler was little influenced by his Catholic background, and when the circumstances warranted, he dealt as harshly with the Catholics as he did the Protestants who became enemies of the Third Reich. Even Hitler's staunchest enemies and critics agree on this point. Yet, even when Hitler was arresting Jehovah's Witnesses and Catholics, as well as Baptists, Masons, and all other avowed enemies of the state, and carting them off to the re-educational or concentration camps, he stood at the seat of government in Berlin and proclaimed to the nation that the actions he was taking were in defense of true Christianity and Almighty God. In his speech of March 23rd, 1923, to the Reichstag, Hitler paid tribute to the Christian faith as "essential elements for safe-guarding the soul of the German people." Moreover, Article 24 of the Party Program had demanded "liberty for all religious denominations in the state so far as they are not a danger to ... the moral feelings of the German race. The party stands for positive Christianity." What then was Hitler's definition of positive Christianity?

History records that Hitler favored and believed in the Christian movement known as the German Christians' Faith Movement. In fact, being a member of the German Christians' Faith Movement was almost a prerequisite for being admitted to high office or getting a good job in the Third Reich. Special preference was shown by the German government of the Third Reich to anyone who had been a member or a professed member of the German Christians' Faith Movement. This German Christians' Faith Movement, while having humble beginnings more than thirty years before Hitler came to power, came to include more than half of the Christian pastors in Germany by the time Hitler became chancellor. It is clear that the National Socialist regime favored and recognized the German Christians' Faith Movement as acceptable positive Christianity. It is clear from Hitler's official actions that the German Christians' Faith Movement was favored by the National Socialist regime over the Prussian Church, as well as the Catholic Church. Now we come to the real heart of the matter.

What did the German Christians' Faith Movement believe and stand for? This becomes a somewhat difficult question to answer in specifics because there were many outstanding pastors in Germany who made a variety of contributions to the German Christians' Faith Movement, and each characterized the movement with his own brand of perception. Some were more staunchly Lutheran and nationalistically historical in their presentations of the movement. Others recognized a greater continuity of history and heritage, tying the German forefathers to Christ through the Scynthians and other Germanic tribes and celebrated the rediscovery of this ancient faith with a Wagnerian zeal. While it is true that these different perceptions prevailed within the German Christians' Faith Movement, we may, in principle, list, with uncanny accuracy, quite a number of constant principles on which the platform of the German Christians' Faith Movement stood firmly.

The Lutheran influence indelibly marked the hearts and character of the German people with the ability to recognize, with a clear image, what the Bible calls antichrists. Martin Luther wrote extensively in his later years as to the danger of the antichrist Jew in Germany. What is called anti-Semitism in the west was called anti-Jewishness or Germans against antichrists in Germany. Because of the heritage of Luther's reformation efforts, the Jew was seen as a clear and present danger by the Germanic Christians even before the German Christians' Faith Movement emerged. The Jew had long been seen as a parasitic opportunist who victimized the German people through usury and the promotion of immoral vices. The Jew was the pimp, the traditional extortionist, and child molester, and in Germany, the Jews as a class represented the most base and lowest elements of gutter society. And while it is true that there were individual exceptions, both on the Christian side and the Jewish side, the German mind saw the conflict between Christian morality and Jewish immorality in characteristic, nationalistic, and Lutheran terms. Martin Luther had built his whole case of reformation upon the New Testament teachings of Jesus Christ and His Holy Apostles.

For the German, Christ's teachings were the true interpretation of the Scriptures. For this underlying reason, the Jews found it nearly impossible to infiltrate the right wing conservative movements of Germany and Austria. There were no Barry Goldwaters or Jews pretending to be racists. The average German Christian was far better educated in conservative theology than 99% of all Americans today. They knew what the New Testament said, and this formed a hedge that the Jewish religious propagandizers could not infiltrate, though there remained a deceived Judeo Protestant minority who called themselves Confessional Christians.

As we said before, the National Socialists formally organized, in 1932, the "German Christians' Faith Movement," led by Dr. Ludwig Mueller, who also became Hitler's personal advisor on Protestant affairs, and later Bishop of the Reich. It was this brilliant preacher who had first brought Hitler together with General von Blomberg. By 1933, the German Christians' Faith Movement had a total of 3,000 out of some 17,000 pastors, although it is admitted on all sides that their lay-followers represented twice as many Christians as the old Judeo churches.

Thus, the German anti-Jewishness was by no means an imaginary problem invented by Hitler. On November the 13th, 1933, the day after the German people had overwhelmingly voted for Hitler, where he won a landslide victory, the German Christians staged a massive rally in the Sportpalast in Berlin. The eminent Doctor Reinhardt Krause, a brilliant theologian and Greek scholar, who was the Berlin District Leader of the German Christians' Faith Movement, stood at this massive rally and publicly proposed the abandonment of the Jewish Masoretic Text in favor of the racist Greek of the Septuagint. He criticized the Jews' misleading translations "with its tales of cattle merchants and pimps," and he also called for the revision of the New Testament by advocating a new German translation from the Koine Greek. He declared that such a true translation would "correspond entirely with the demands of National Socialism."

In addition to this, resolutions were drawn up demanding that the basic tenets of the Christian faith be acknowledged by all Christian churches in the Reich. This philosophical platform was characterized as "One People, One Reich, One Faith." The resolution further required that all pastors take an oath of allegiance to their new leader, Adolf Hitler, and insisted that all churches institute the Aryan paragraph and exclude converted Jews. This restoration move proved too much for the Romantic Judeo Protestants. Bishop Mueller was forced to suspend Dr. Krause and disavow him for political expediency. What a different story history may well have told today if the force of the German Faith movement had had time and opportunity to have continued its development.

Thus, Jews had long been the source of social unrest in Germany, especially from the time of the reformation of Martin Luther. Martin Luther, the great founder of Protestantism, was both a passionate anti-Semite and a ferocious believer in absolute obedience to righteous political authority. He wanted Germany rid of the Jews, and when they were sent away he advised that they be rid of all of their "cash, and jewels and silver and gold" and "that their synagogues or schools be set on fire and that their houses be broken up and destroyed ... and that they be put under a roof or stable, like the gypsies ... in misery and captivity as they incessantly lament or complain to God about us." Luther further said of the Jews: "They are the real liars and bloodhounds, who have ... perverted and falsified the entire Scriptures from beginning to end and without ceasing with their interpretations."

The German Christians' Faith Movement merely recognized the traditional conflict between Christianity and immoral, antichrist, Talmudic Judaism. This great gulf between Christian values and the immoral behavior of the amoral Jew became even more intolerable when Jewish influence caused an unjust settlement of World War I. The majority of Germans became convinced that the troublesome minority of Jews in Germany had gained an unfair economical and political advantage over the German state and were using their control of the newspaper and publishing concerns to impose Jewish values and ideas on the German Christian nation.

When the Jews proved to be responsible for what became known as the Versailles Treaty, which humiliated the German people and forced them into economical slavery as a nation, the traditional and nominal German Churches failed to cry out at the gross injustices and corruption of German morality. The German people began looking past the traditional Churches, deeper into their national heritage, and even began carefully examining the origins and teachings of Christianity. This climate spurred an intellectual inquisition and a search for primitive Christianity that had not seen its equal since the time of Martin Luther.

The German people had added to their vast collective knowledge an incredible amount of scientific and historical facts since the time of Martin Luther. They had created the sciences of Archeology and Anthropology, which had made their understanding of history unparalleled by the rest of the world. Added to this, they had created the sciences of Ethnology and Etymology and were then able to read the ancient languages with incredible accuracy. Most Americans do not understand that the basis for all true scholarship was pioneered by the German people. Thus, the German nation, even in the midst of the great calamities of World War I, was ripe for a rational scientific approach for the understanding of Christianity. Decades of scientific investigation and research were now generally common knowledge, especially among the educated. The German nation was more advanced in almost every field of endeavor than any other nation on the face of the earth. There grew out of these circumstances and this intellectual climate a bold, new, rational approach to the understanding of Christian theology. As we have said before, this movement became known as the German Christians' Faith Movement. It was, in retrospect, a movement in its infancy but it did manage to muster the most brilliant and latest scientific evidence the world had ever seen. The startling facts of the German scholarship of the German Christians' Faith Movement resulted in the fact that they often found themselves in opposition to what had become traditional Christianity and what became designated as nominal or Judeo Christianity.

The German Christians' Faith Movement began early drawing distinctions between its findings and beliefs and those of what may only be described as nominal, traditional, and Jewish-influenced "Christian" views. Adolf Hitler became familiar with the startling findings of this controversial Christian movement early in his career. There is little question that he was willingly subjected to Christian Socialist literature while in Vienna. The record shows that he was continuously in contact with scholars and men who were well versed in the findings and the scholarly views of the German Christians' Faith Movement. Just how familiar Hitler was with the basic tenets and principles of belief may only be gleaned from his writings and actions.

He wrote no specific thesis on Christianity. Nor did he claim to be a scholar. He appeared rather to be content with the evolving German Christians' Faith Movement and rested confidently with the idea that eventually science and rational thought would bring to light all knowable truth of history and theology. Hitler was by nature a practical man who sought immediate solutions to immediate problems. Yet, there can be no question that his overviews of history and his views of religion were deeply shaped by the influential members of the German

Christians' Faith Movement that surrounded him. We have already mentioned the preferential treatment given by the National Socialist Party to members of the German Christians' Faith Movement, especially in the area of jobs and political appointment. It seems logical to conclude that the German Christians' influence continued throughout the regime. Hitler's view of Aryan history caused him to go against the military advice of his own generals when he refused to march on into Britain after the British defeat at Dunkirk (1940). When pressed for his reasons, he compassionately expressed belief that the English were, after all, racial brethren and would eventually come to the sanity of National Socialism, and that he did not want to humiliate them for those reasons. At this point, Hitler could hardly be described as a mad-man bent on world conquest. If anything, he would have to be described as a romantic, as he later virtually admitted in his Testament, not only about the British but the Italians as well. All through the war, entire divisions of the German Army were spent in preserving archeological and historical treasures. In fact, the greatest collection of Jewish antiquities known to the world was preserved by the German Army. These attitudes and actions may only be explained in light of the influence of the respect for truth and scholarship maintained by the German Christians' Faith Movement. We have already established the indisputable fact that Adolf Hitler was very familiar with the teachings and scholarship of the German Christians' Faith Movement, and we have answered the second part of the classical question, What did he know, and when did he know it? Now to answer the question, What did he know?,

We must turn again to common knowledge among the German Christians' Faith Movement.

1. He knew that there was ample scientific evidence to prove that the ancient Sumerian Society had originally come from European Racial Stock, the same society of the land of Ur of which Abraham of the Bible had originally been a member.

2. He knew that the civilization that had originally been founded between the Euphrates and Tigris rivers, or the Valley of the Crescent, had been founded by Aryan men and that that ancient nation had once dominated the Middle East, reaching all the way into India.

3. He knew that the ancient Babylonian accounts talked about a racial war between the Adamites and the Accadians or blackheads, and that the mongrelized Blackheads eventually pushed the Aryan white man back toward Europe.

4. He knew that the Greek of the Septuagint Scriptures make it abundantly clear that Abraham was called out from the Land of Ur to preserve his racial integrity, as well as to preserve the oracles of truth and actual traditions of the ancient Sumerians.

5. He knew that the Ancient Greeks, Medes, and Latins were originally Aryan peoples, and that their literature and own testimonies all testify that the demise of their power and civilizations was directly linked to the adoption of the ancient Accadian Babylonian philosophy of the equality of races, or what is called in Jewish Talmudic terms, the brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God.

6. He knew that the proponents and propagandizers of this ancient philosophy were the Babylonian Jews, who later racially merged with the Edomite Jews of Palestine and recorded the Babylonian philosophy in the Babylonian Talmud and later the Jerusalem Talmud. He knew that this ancient Satanic religious philosophy was anti-white and antichrist in character. There is little question that Hitler was very familiar with the antichrist teachings of the Talmud. Many of his remarks in Mein Kampf suggest an incredible insight into the understanding of that Satanic philosophy.

7. He knew from the works of German scholarship, and especially German Greek lexicons, that the New Testament of Jesus Christ in the writings of the Apostles were anti-Talmudic Jew and Edomite Jew. He knew that the New Testament in the original Greek can only be described in modern Western terms as uncompromisingly racist. Christ, Paul, John, and Peter – all these men make clear, emphatic statements against the living death of Babylonian race-mixing. Hitler would have certainly known that the Christ and His Apostles were Galileans and were racially pure Aryans.

8. Hitler's own statements more than suggest that he was well aware that the Bible, specifically the Scriptures or the Septuagint, was written for white people to preserve their racial integrity according to the laws of God and nature. Moreover, living in the nation of Luther, he would have certainly understood that the Christian writings claim to be the true interpretation of the Scriptures and profess to be the teachings and doctrines of the Christ, the very God incarnate. Hitler would have certainly known that the Talmudic Jews' claim to be the true interpreters of the Scriptures was a godless lie.

9. There can be no question that he would have known and understood that the Jewish Masoretic Text, which claims to be based on ancient Hebrew, was not compiled or written until 1050 AD, or the time of William the Conqueror. There can be no question that German scholarship had already exposed, by the standard of scientific proof, the incredible Jewish lie that claims that the modern Aramaic Hebrew characters were somehow the same as the ancient Hebrew, which in truth was more akin to ancient Greek and the white Aryan languages.

10. Hitler would surely have been aware of the Jewish influence in the compiling and making of the New Testament translations of the English people. He may well have been able to state, with scientific accuracy, the number of Jews commissioned by King James.

11. There is no question that the Third Reich understood the incredible corruption of both British and American scholarship. He knew that both Britain and America had originally received their advances in the understanding of the ancient Greek language from German scholars.

He also knew that the Jews had systematically corrupted and watered down the findings of German scholars when they translated these scholarly works into English. He knew that American religious institutions were increasingly Judeo in character. Given all of this we may easily surmise that Adolf Hitler would have had no problem defining what constitutes a deceived, misguided, and misled Judeo Christian. His writings indicate clearly that he made a distinction between real primitive Christianity and the farce of modern Jewish-influenced Judeoism.

Thus, Hitler's scholarly understanding of the incredible scope of deception and antichrist influence over the Christian west may well have been the reason behind his choosing to focus his intellect on seeking immediate remedies to the incredible problems of his starving people. Hitler's views seemed to have been that the first order of business was to establish an Aryan State based upon the ancient definition of a nation, which has always been race, rather than the artificial definition of nation, which was first conceived in Babylon and which defines a nation through mutually held philosophy and territorial boundaries. Hitler defined a nation by the ancient definition of race, not by geographical boundaries, or even patriotic philosophy, and as incredible as it may seem, that was and is precisely the Christian message preached by Jesus Christ and His Holy Apostles in the first century, which called for God's people to come out from among them and be a separate people.

Christ called for a Christian nation composed of true Aryans, worldwide in scope. Peter said that this nation was a holy nation of rulers and priests. Hitler's National Socialist German nation was the fulfillment of that Christian vision in Germany. The National Socialists envisioned that this ancient quest for racial survival and perpetuation would last a thousand years. We may surmise that the German Christians' Faith Movement did indeed see Germany as the first nation restored to the ancient Aryan definition of nation and of true patriotism, one people, one blood, one governmental rule.

Now, having assembled an incredible number of scientific facts commonly known and shared by the German aristocracy of the Third Reich, we logically think ourselves ready to answer the main question we have sought to pursue and pass Biblical judgment on the messenger of the Third Reich. Was Hitler a Judeo Christian? The answer is blatantly obvious. Thank God, he was not. Was Adolf Hitler a primitive Christian, a Bible Christian? To this, the testimony of history, literature, reason, and most importantly the New Testament of Christ, resoundingly answer, "Yes!"

Adolf Hitler was, incredible as it may seem, one of the most dedicated and believing Christians the world has ever known, who spent his life energies implementing the Christian vision of the world.[1] God bless the memory of Adolf Hitler, and all who have given their lives in pursuit of the German Christians' Faith Movement, and in pursuit of the restoration of the white Christian nation. Adolf Hitler laid down his life in defense of and for the preservation of his race, just as did Jesus the Christ. The Bible says: no greater love has any man than this, that he would lay down his life for another. Christ and the Apostles, Hitler and the German Christians' Faith Movement, all gave their lives for the preservation of our race and the laws of our God.

[1] Since the original publication of this treatise, many have felt it necessary to finally admit the truth regarding Adolf Hitler's and the German people's Christianity and the influence it had on the decisions of the Third Reich. Even the Jews have felt it necessary to admit the truth. The book, Hitler's Willing Executioners (1996) by Daniel Goldhagen, is one book actually written by a Jew which explores this topic in some detail. Constantine's Sword (2001) by James Carroll is another, more recent example. (James Carroll states he is a Catholic when he discusses his childhood friendship with a Jew in the introduction to this book.) While numerous other books have been published by the mainstream media regarding Christianity's fundamental teachings against mongrelization and Talmudic Judaism, we cannot list them all here. The reader is encouraged, however, to study the issues on their own time.

Epilogue

Jews and antichrists always forget to mention the fact that Adolf Hitler was, in his youth, a German war hero and received the highest decoration of his nation, capturing sixteen of the enemy single-handedly. He was the Alvin York of Germany. He later received the Iron Cross again for his heroic conduct when he was gassed in the trenches. There is abundant proof that Adolf Hitler was a very religious young man, even acting as an altar boy in the Catholic Church. But Adolf Hitler's love and respect for truth took him beyond the non-Biblical teachings of Judeo Christianity, whether Catholic or Protestant. Hitler believed in Positive Christianity. He knew from the brilliant German linguists that Jesus Christ was an adamant racist, and so were His Apostles, especially the Apostle Paul.

Hitler knew that the early Greek philosophers known as the Platonists, and most Gnostics, were adamant racists, and so were the dispersed Israelites, who were present among the populations of the Celtic-Germanic peoples known in history as the Scynthians and the Gauls. Hitler understood and knew that the Galatians of the New Testament were the Gauls, and that in fact Galilee was an ancient Celtic settlement. It therefore becomes important to understand that although Jesus Christ was of an Israelite tribe, He and all of His Apostles, except for Judas Iscariot, were raised in an Aryan portion of Palestine. The so-called lost ten tribes of Israel were dispersed and intermingled for several hundred years among the Celtic peoples, as well as the Greeks, and it was these Celtic peoples, who after suffering mass-murder by the Romans, fled back into Germany, all the way to Ireland, and established the Celtic Church. The oldest Church and the oldest theology is that of the Celtic Church of Europe.

But if we go back further in history, we find that the Middle East and the North African continent were first populated by white men who were called Iberians. The ancient Hebrew people were Iberians, and they were white. It was they who brought civilization to the Middle East. The records of archeology show in clear scientific fact that the early founders of the Sumerian civilization, as well as Egypt, were these early migratory Germanic people known as Iberians. No one can say for sure when the family of Abraham of the Bible went to the Sumerian civilization. They may have been there many generations. But we can say as an absolute positive fact that when Abraham's father, Terah, according to the Bible, saw that the mongreled Accadians had gained political control of that ancient white civilization, he took his son Abraham and left that country in order to preserve his racial integrity.

One need only turn to the Aryan Scriptures in order to read the story of the racial preservation of Israel. Adolf Hitler and all members of the German Christians' Faith Movement were well aware of these historical facts and truth. Adolf Stoecker of the Christian Socialist Party, more than anyone else in history, laid the foundation for the German Christians' Faith Movement. But while the Christian Socialists were fiercely anti-Semitic, they had failed to clearly identify the source of the antichrist enemy, who, as Rosenburg and other Aryan thinkers had clearly identified, was the Talmudic, antichrist, mongreled Jew. The Spanish Jews had made their way into the Catholic Church. Many people do not understand that the Spanish Jews count the Spanish language as their sacred language.

Knowing all of this, Hitler's greatest contribution was his understanding of clearly identifying the antichrist enemy. It becomes important for the open-minded reader to understand that Hitler was not against Positive Christianity. He understood better than most Americans what Positive Christianity was and is. Today, in America, we have a great number of Spanish Jews and people of Spanish Jewish blood, as well as Ashkenazi Jews, pretending to be racists, but only a Positive Christian can be a true racist. Those who join the Jews to call Adolf Hitler a Jew, such as some of the so-called Identity "ministers," are in truth Jews themselves, if not in body, certainly in mind, and they are worse than the Jews and worse than the antichrist Judeo false "Christians." They serve only one purpose, and that is to divert the Government of God from coming to fruition. Those who teach the Jews' doctrine that Christ must bodily return to this Earth before the Government of God will be established are liars and are perverted twisters of Scripture.

Hitler knew that God's Government is already established, and all that God is waiting for is for His sons to know who they are, to know their identity, and to take the authority to rule and reign as the Sons of the Living God. If you want to know more, write the Separatist Christian Church. If you want to die of the AIDS plague and be massacred by mongrels, don't write, and believe the Jews. But this one thing is certain, there is no other name, that is to say, authority, given under Heaven or earth whereby men may be saved other than that wonderful name, Jesus Christ. This is the hour when white men will either get serious with God or be accursed with the plague of AIDS and the political ramifications it is bringing. The Christian Separatist Church stands for Positive Christianity based upon scientific fact.
